

A visit with Elliot Adams

Elliott Adams, past president of Veterans For Peace, visited Asheville last week to give a workshop on nonviolent activism at UNCA. Adams was a paratrooper in the infantry, and served in Vietnam, Japan, Korea, and Alaska. He is now a Nonviolent Training Coordinator for Veterans For Peace. He is dedicating his life to stopping this war and stopping all war.

In addition to the workshop, Adams spoke to a larger gathering, and engaged in a bit of direct action with local Vets for Peace and other activists.

You can read more about this event at the Asheville War Resisters' League blog:

Taxes, Tea, and Fireside Conspiracy

Thanks to Clare Hanrahan for the excellent reporting!